

Dear Honey Galan,

I hope this letter finds you well. It is with mixed emotions that I write to tender my resignation from my position at IPLOY as Customer rep, effective immediately. The reason for my resignation is pregnancy-related health concerns that require me to prioritize my well-being and the health of my unborn child.

I want to express my utmost gratitude for the opportunities and support I have received during my time at IPLOY. The experiences and growth I have gained here have been truly invaluable, and I am thankful for the relationships I have formed with my colleagues and superiors.

Unfortunately, due to certain health complications associated with my pregnancy, it has become necessary for me to take a step back from my current role and focus on the well-being of myself. The demands and responsibilities of my position, along with the physical strain of work, pose potential risks that cannot be ignored. It is essential for me to prioritize the health and safety of myself.

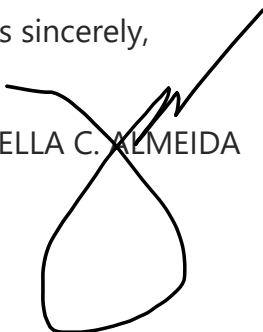

I want to assure you that my decision to resign is not one I have taken lightly. I have carefully considered various alternatives and have concluded that resigning is the most appropriate course of action to ensure a healthy and successful pregnancy. .

I apologize for any inconvenience caused by my departure. It was never my intention to leave IPLOY in a difficult position. I deeply appreciate the opportunities and experiences I have had here, and I will carry the lessons learned throughout my career. Thank you for your understanding, support, and the trust you have placed in me. I am confident that by prioritizing my health and the well-being, I am making the right decision.

Wishing you and the entire IPLOY team continued success.

Yours sincerely,

ISABELLA C. ALMEIDA

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read 'ISABELLA C. ALMEIDA', written over the printed name. The signature is stylized with a large loop at the bottom and a long, thin stroke extending upwards and to the right.