Eddie Mae Compra
iPloy

Dear TL Eddie,

Good day.

It's difficult for me to write this, but I've decided to formally resign from my position at iPloy, effective immediately. I sincerely apologize for my attendance these past few days. I tried my best to hold on because I truly didn't want to leave, but I now need to focus on taking care of my two dependents and supporting my family.

While staying home, I've also been searching for other opportunities online, and I'm grateful to have been offered a position that will better help me provide for my mother and siblings. I hope you understand that this decision comes from the need to prioritize my family's situation.

I also want to express that part of my decision was influenced by the uncertainty in our company's current situation. There have been concerns about what to expect moving forward, and I admit it has affected my motivation. I understand that not everything can be disclosed, but I believe that having transparency and options for employees would greatly help everyone feel more secure.

Despite everything, I want to sincerely thank you for more than two wonderful years under your leadership. Being part of your team has been one of the best experiences of my career. I've learned so much from you and will always be grateful for your support, guidance, and understanding throughout my time at iPloy.

Thank you again for everything, TL. Wishing you and the team continued success.

Sincerely,

Angela Mae Zaspas
